Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing this note in reference to "Made in U.S.A" labels. They (manufacturers) are pulling the "wool" over our eyes.

As you can read the label I paid good money and time in looking for the made in U.S.A label. This label came off a pair of pajamas I bought my husband.

Before washing I soaked them in vinegar & water. I did so because they are red. (Benefit of the doubt) Well after washing in cold water so much red came out I thought there would be no color left. O.K so I soaked them in cold water! The same thing happened. Here I am using excess water because I had to wash them separately.

I didn't take them back, I had lost the receipt. But really made in the U.S.A clothes should NOT Run like this

I've been to Panama C.Z. where made things are manufactured in S.A.m. One expects the running of colors because they dont know how to set the colors, but NOT U.S.A. made.

I'd taken a sweater (4th of July) back to Beall's Dept. store. Wet, just out of the wash with colors running all over the sweater. It also had the Made in U.S.A. sticker. I have to tell you the customer relations person was "Shocked" to say the least.

Thank you for your kind attention to this matter,

Nancy K Gerace

P.S. I also had a blouse with dark little red hearts made in U.S.A. After one washing the little hearts were pale little hearts.
