

SUSANNE TRIMBATH

Susanne Trimbath is an experienced business professional with nearly 20 years in financial services, including operations management. Her overlapping academic teaching experience includes economics and finance courses at New York University's Department of Economics, Stern School of Business and the New York Institute of Finance. Her research focuses on mergers and buyouts, real estate investments, and emerging capital markets.

Before joining the Milken Institute as a Senior Research Economist, Trimbath was Senior Advisor on the Capital Markets Project for KPMG Peat Marwick (Barett), which laid the foundation for a capital market infrastructure in Russia. Prior to that, she was a Director in operations at Depository Trust & Clearing Corporation, NY; and an economic briefings Editor with the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco.

Trimbath's comments on economic and finance issues appear frequently in newspapers, television and radio. She authored Mergers and Efficiency: Changes Across Time (Kluwer, 2002), co-authored Beyond Junk Bonds: Expanding High Yield Markets (Oxford, 2003), and co-edited Lessons from Savings and Loans (Kluwer, 2003). She is the 1999 recipient of the Milken Institute Award for Distinguished Economic Research for her paper High Yield Securities and Efficiency-Enhancing Takeovers.

Trimbath holds an MBA in Management from Golden Gate University and received her Ph.D. in Economics from New York University. She is a regular contributor to the Milken Institute Review, Progress in Development Studies, and frequently referees technical articles for the Financial Services Review and the Review of Quantitative Finance and Accounting.
