

From: Kate Miller
Sent: Sunday, March 07, 2004 11:11 AM
To: CONTACTLENSRULE
Subject: Contact Lenses Regulations

It is in the best interest of the consumer to ensure that the transition from eye doctor to contact lens provider is easy. Currently, it is often a hassle to obtain a prescription even from eye doctors like Pearl Vision. They make you jump through ropes, often saying that they pulled the wrong record. Having three individuals in my household, two under 18 wearing daily wear lenses, I'm often frustrated with the current system. Please think about the ramifications of making this process any worse by giving the eye doctors any more opportunities to throw stumbling blocks up.

Just for a cost example, I pay nearly $2,000 just for lenses for my family--a cost not covered by my individual health insurance provider, because I'm self-employed. I pay up to $90 per person for eye examines, something not regulated because it is not going through an insurance provider.

Thank you for your time, I'd appreciate any support that you give to the consumer when it comes to purchasing contact lenses.

Kate Miller