To Whom it concerns - including myself.

I have always been annoyed that I was not given my prescription from my ophthalmologist/optometrist when I asked for it - even though he did NOT sell the contact lenses that I needed.

I feel it is important for every person to have their medical information. It only makes sense. Also, in this world of free trade - I have the right to purchase my contact lenses from any source I choose - as do prescription glasses wearers.

I feel that when I purchase an ophthalmic/optic service, then I have purchased the outcome of that service - as with any other service.

Please simplify things and let the contact lens wearer (consumer) have the prescription. Pretty simple.

Thank you.
