

Comment # 518

From: Michael H Elkington
Sent: Friday, March 05, 2004 3:28 PM
To: CONTACTLENSRULE

I am contact lense wearer, and I recently became informed about an act that requires eye doctors to give me my prescription at no charge--thus, I am allowed to buy my lenses where I want.

My understanding is that groups are lobbying to revoke this law. I feel that revoking this law is an attack to free-marketing. My belief is that consumers should be allowed to buy form those with a competetive advantage. If eye doctors cannot compete in this area, then they must look elsewhere for their competetive advantages.

Please do not allow groups to make the consumer suffer for their inefficiencies. Please uphold this act as it now is.