When I order my lenses, I want them shipped quickly. I have the right to see the eye doctor once a year, get my prescription, then order contact lenses from whomever I desire. Last year, I tried to order my contacts from my eye doctor. It took WEEKS to receive them, leaving me with an old prescription and old lenses. I usually order from the internet (1800contacts.com) and receive them within a couple of days. The internet order was easy and convenient and I don't understand why or how the Federal Trade Commission and their proposed rule should be involved in any part of this.
