To whom it may concern,

Purchasing lenses via the Internet provides me with greater convenience and a much lower price than purchasing lenses from an eye doctor. I have enjoyed years of great service from my online provider. The lenses are of high quality and delivered in a reliable, timely fashion for less than I would pay from an eye doctor. Moreover, I do not have to deal with changing doctors. I have had a situation where I moved away from my existing eye doctor, and I ran out of lenses before I could find a new one. If I had my prescription, I could order lenses anywhere, at my convenience.

Please allow online providers the opportunity to sell lenses to the public.

Sincerely,
Paul
