G'day,

I was not aware that such software existed until just a few days ago.

I did go to a site online which offered to scan my hard drive and, it found 147 instances of such stuff.

My main concern is the "keystroke logging" software that has the ability to intercept my credit card information, personal information, etc. This is a greivous breech of my personal privacy.

Please enact laws that will stop this practice. Make the penalies very harsh... big monetary fines.

Another item that bothers me is when some outfit "high jacks" my home page. One can spend countless hours trying to find out who did it and how to get rid of the software that is causing it.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment...
