

From: Jim Pietrzak
Posted At: Friday, May 14, 2004 1:46 PM
Conversation: Spyware Workshop - Comment, P044509
Posted To: spywareworkshop2004

Subject: Spyware Workshop - Comment, P044509

Dear Government Representative,

I am writing to voice my concerns over the Spyware issue. It is supposed to be your job to protect the rights of individuals; so why do you seem intent on giving any site I visit the right to place intrusive cookies on MY computer. It is the business of absolutely no-one what sites I visit or what software is on my computer.

I was taught in school that the job of the government is to protect the people. What became of that simple principle ? Is it that I do not have the resources to donate large sums of money to politicians ? Is it that I cannot afford high-priced attorneys and former government officials to champion what is right ?

I guess the old saying is true, ". . . those with the gold, make the rules."

What a shame.