Dear Sirs or Madams:

When we regular citizens log on to the Internet, we don't expect to be exploited by irreputable persons, from contacts we never intended to make, or to have our personal property invaded in insidious ways the extent of which we may never know, and when this is done, often, for the profit of others, it is criminal.

In this case, we, as individuals can do little to stop this proliferation; we need help from agencies dedicated to monitoring and providing these services to a deserving public. We need the help of an organization like yours to take charge and enforce privacy and free use.

Please hear our plea for effective action to control Spyware and Adware.
